CHARGE SPEEDING ON THE AVENUES

Nine Visiting Automobile Parties Must Answer for Violating National Park Regulations. Several Flagrant Infractions.

Determined to break up automobile speeding on the avenues, the National Park Commission has laid information before United States Commissioner Raymond F. Topper charging nine persons with exceeding the speed limit. None of the offenders resides in Gettysburg.

All of the offenses are said to have been committed at hours when the regular guards were supposed to have gone off duty. The night patrol of the avenues or other special officers detected the violations, however, which in every instance were most flagrant. The speed attained was from 20 miles to 50 miles an hour, the motorists converting the park roads into regular speedways. The avenues at places show signs of the wear given them by this speeding and every effort will be put forth to stop a continuation of the practice.

It is stated that for some months the automobile owners of Gettysburg and the immediate vicinity have been very careful to observe all the rules and regulations of the National Park and that, where violations by local people have occurred, they have been of a minor nature and apparently unintentional. Visitors, however, are not so careful and sometimes cannot resist the temptation to put on extra speed. The vigilance of the force employed to guard the avenues accounts for the informations being laid.

The action must meet with the approval of the United States attorney before any warrant is served by a marshal and it is understood that, in most, is not all, of the cases, the offenders are given a chance to make settlement without having to pay the heavy costs entailed when an arrest is made.

The names of those against whom information has been laid are withheld from publication pending the usual legal steps being taken.

UNDERWENT OPERATION

Baltimore Surgeon Finds Appendix Embedded in Muscles.

Mrs. Roy P. Funkhouser, was operated upon for appendicitis at the Union Protestant Infirmary, Baltimore, at midnight Friday. She became seriously ill Thursday night and on Friday evening was taken to Baltimore on the evening train by Mr. Funkhouser, Dr. Crist, and N. E. Funkhouser, her father-in-law. Mrs. John N. Shultz, her mother, and Mrs. N. E. Funkhouser went to Baltimore by automobile and were there at the time of the operation. Dr. Pancoast, who performed the operation, stated that the appendix, in addition to being diseased, had become embedded in some muscles, so that the operation was more serious than usual, but it was declared entirely successful. All of those who accompanied the patient to Baltimore, with the exception of her husband, returned home by automobile during the night.

SHOT HIMSELF

Colored Lad puts Bullet in his Neck.

William Price, an 11-year old colored lad of Blue Ridge Summit, obtained possession, Thursday night, of his father's revolver and accidentally shot himself in the neck. He was hurried to the Hagerstown hospital in an automobile and the bullet was extracted. The wound will not prove serious and the boy will get well.

OCTOBER 16TH IS TOPTON DAY

Big Excursion from Berks and Adjoining Counties will Come on Third Saturday of Next Month. May Conflict with Farmers' Day.

Saturday, October 16, has been selected as the day for the annual Autumn Leaf excursion run to Gettysburg every fall by the Lutheran Orphans' School at Tipton. It is estimated that this year's outing will bring in the neighborhood of 3000 people from Berks and adjoining counties.

The date has been definitely determined upon and there is no possibility of its being changed so that the business men who had been considering October 16 for Farmers' Day will have to cast about for another date, as it is not considered a good proposition to have both events at the same time. Several requests have been received that October 9th should not be chosen owing to the McIlheny-King reunion on that day. Waynesboro has selected October 2nd and, as many people from the western part of Adams County attend the Franklin County affair, it is not believed advisable to hold both on the same date.

As a result, the committee working toward arrangements for this year's Farmers' Day here will have a difficult time to please everybody and there is considerable doubt about the upshot of the affair.

The Tiptonites always prove quite a drawing card here and the town is well filled with visitors on that day. The school reaps substantial returns from the outing and it will be advertised extensively as ever.

On Sunday, September 19, the Reading will run an excursion to Gettysburg from Norristown and vicinity. The number of passengers estimated now is 400 but it is not believed that it will reach more than half that figure, for all the railroads declare excursion business to be slack at this time.

The fall business in the way of personally conducted tours will not be up to that of other years, it is said by those in a position to know, as the booking agents do not seem to find so ready a response as in other seasons.

TOOK CLOTHES AND HIS MONEY

Seventeen Dollars Missing when Man Awoke. Hat and Shoes Stolen and then Burned. Experience of Man who Had Misfortune here.

Unger J. Snyder, who last year lost his barn and most of the contents in a night fire north of Gettysburg, is now the prosecutor in a case at Waynesboro. The charge grows out of the theft of money and several articles of wearing apparel which the former Adams County farmer says were removed while he was asleep. Snyder has for some time been living in Waynesboro.

It was during one evening recently that Snyder repaired to the stables of a Waynesboro hotel to take a nap. He reposed soundly and when he awoke missed his shoes, his hat and $17 in money. Charles Shrader Jr. was seen with Snyder during the evening and after an investigation a warrant was sworn out for his arrest.

Shrader was given a hearing Thursday evening before Magistrate John A. Potter, at which time he was held under $500 bail for his appearance at court. In default of bail he was committed to the lockup over night until Friday morning, when he was taken to the Franklin county jail on the 9 o'clock car by Constable Byers.

At the hearing Shrader would not testify, saying merely that he was drunken crazy at the time and did not know what he was doing.

Charles Mellott testified that Shrader sold the shoes to him but when these were found on him (Mellott) by the police, he made Shrader take them back. By this transaction, he said, he was out 75 cents which he paid to Shrader for the shoes.

Friday morning Shrader's conscience moved him and he called Chief Staley out of bed and confessed to him the details of the robbery. He said that he burned the hat and also the shoes upon getting them from Mellott.

Snyder is well known here where the story of his latest experience will be learned with no small degree of interest.

CAN PEACHES AS WELL AS APPLES

New Preserving Plant Taking Care of Part of the Big Fruit Crop. Mince Meat to be One of the Products. Other Things, too.

A new industry, which bids fair to prove highly successful and to do much in solving the problem of over-production in the peach and apple orchards of Adams County, has been started at York Springs. Visitors are surprised by the quality of the product and the promising start which has been made.

The industry is a factory for the preserving and canning of peaches and apples. Already a large quantity of the fruit has been converted into peach preserves and canned peaches of the finest sort. Apple butter will be one of the products later in the season. Some apples will also be canned, cider will be a regular product, and mince meat is to occupy the attention of the proprietors later in the season. Indications now point to a miniature Heinz establishment within our own borders.

W. E. Grove, prominently identified with the Oakwood Corporation which has extensive orchards in the vicinity of York Springs, and William Davis, also a fruit grower of that community, have formed what is known as the Adams County Preserving Company, which is conducting the new establishment. The concern is not connected with the Oakwood Corporation, in a business way, though the fruit of their orchards and of that belonging to Mr. Davis will be used before taking that of other growers.

Gettysburg people who have visited the plant this week say that no finer canned peaches can be bought than those which are now on display at the factory. They are put up in jars and in cans, to suit the individual desires of the various buyers, and it is believed that there will be little difficulty in finding a ready market for all they can put out. The peach butter is most appetizing, they say, and everything is operated in a cleanly and sanitary way.

At the present time there are only about a dozen people employed at the plant, but this number will be greatly increased as the success of the company becomes pronounced, and as additional machinery is installed.

DOUBLY UNFORTUNATE

Blaze on Strickler Farm which was Quarantined last November.

The destruction of the barn, combined tobacco shed and steer stable, together with several other small buildings on the Amos Strickler farm near Wrightsville this week is the second great loss sustained by Mr. Strickler within a year. Last November on account of the mouth and hoof disease, by order of the state authorities, 45 head of steers, 5 cows, 5 young heifers, 36 sheep and 120 head of hogs were killed.

During the progress of the fire the other night there were some narrow escapes from serious injuries when the tank on an oil engine exploded. After the west end of the stone barn had fallen out, the cable end being about 40 feet high, a number of people walked close to the place to look at the ruins, standing within 10 feet of the engine. They had just walked away, after being warned that there was danger at this place, when the explosion occurred, sending a shower of ashes and fire to a height of about 50 feet.

He leaves four daughters and two sons.

FINAL DAY OF THE GRANGERS

Total Attendance and General Features at Williams Grove Better than in Any Preceding Year According to Official in Charge.

The forty-second annual Grangers' Picnic which closed Friday is viewed by Manager Thomas as the most successful ever conducted by the State Grange. The number of visitors on the last day was estimated at eight thousand.

Exhibitors of farm machinery and automobiles are much pleased by the purchases made by this year's visitors, many noting the large proportion of women who have made deals for their products.

A crowd of several hundred heard an address in the afternoon by Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, of Trenton, N. J., who presented the anti-suffrage arguments to the farmers. Mrs. Oliphant deplored what she said were the unkind personal attacks made by the suffragists on the anti and while expressing appreciation of the eloquence and wit shown by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, questioned the suffrage leader's logic.

Cyrus T. Fox, of Reading, a representative of the State Board of Agriculture, awarded ribbon prizes to exhibitors of fruits and vegetables. No prizes were given for poultry and cattle.

The majority of the cottage holders associated with the Grangers' Picnic have closed or are closing their summer homes. Notable has been the increase in travel over the roads to the Grangers' Picnic to the detriment of railroad travel. With Friday's relatively small crowd, nearly all of the fields in the neighborhood of Williams Grove were well stocked with stored cars.

"PENROD" NEXT

Last Serial Story of the Season and the Best Starts Monday.

Demands from our readers for another serial were so strong that they could not be ignored. "Penrod" is the result. That it is one of the greatest boy stories ever written, is the consensus of the critics. Booth Tarkington's place in American literature is secure and he regards "Penrod" as his best effort in that direction.

It has been our pleasure to call attention of our readers to the serial stories we were able to secure for publication from time to time, but on no occasion have we had more to offer than now. We feel a pride that we believe to be entirely justifiable in being able to present literature of this kind. Each succeeding serial story published this summer has had more readers than the one before and you, who have not read "Penrod", will miss something if you do not start the first chapter on Monday.

As we have formerly stated you could not buy this story in book form for less than $1.25 but you receive it along with other remarkable features and the full news of the world in a period of about three weeks for approximately 15 cents.

MID-SUMMER bargain day on Thursday, September 9th. We will launder your counterpanes for 10 cents each. Let us have your call early, not later than Wednesday noon. Will deliver Friday or Saturday. Gettysburg Steam Laundry.—advertisement 1

GRODNO TAKEN BY GERMANS

Russian Stronghold Falls After a Short Siege.

3000 PRISONERS CAPTURED

The Czar's Forces Are Also Being Beaten Back By Austrian Arms In Galicia.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army has captured Grodno, the last fortress in the czar's second line of defense held by the Russians.

Official announcement of the capture of the great fortress is made in the report from the general staff. German troops, it states, rapidly forced the passage of the Niemen river after capturing the Russian forts. There was fighting in the streets of Grodno. The city is now in the hands of the Germans.

The German troops which were advancing on the important Russian port of Riga, on the Baltic, have made a further important gain. They have captured a position northwest of Friedrichstadt, which is about forty miles from Riga.

The army of Field Marshal von Hindenburg captured more than 3000 Russian prisoners and took one cannon and eighteen machine guns.

Petrograd Admits Reverse. London, Sept. 4.—The evacuation of Grodno is under way. Petrograd admits officially that Russian forces are being withdrawn from the right bank of the Niemen. The loss by the Russians of the last of their strong fortresses has been expected and the report that its evacuation was imminent caused no surprise in London.

It has been evident for some time that Grand Duke Nicholas had no intention of allowing a number of men sufficient to maintain a long defense to be penned up in any fortress which could be invested.

Along the Galician border General Ivanoff continues to retire, but not without inflicting heavy losses on the Austro-German forces, which have been shaken several times by vigorous counter attacks. In the center and the extreme north the Germans are making little progress. The Russians claim another local success near Vilna.

Apparently while Petrograd is the ultimate and Riga the immediate objective of the German armies in the north, the objective of the southern armies is Kiev. As the Russian campaign progresses it is becoming quite unmistakable that the Germans are aiming at the conquest of the Russian state.

The German armies hope to winter in Petrograd and Kiev. There is no intention of repeating the error of the great Napoleon. East Prussia, with a nearer base to the Baltic, which it is hoped to find in Riga, to some extent guarantees the German efforts toward Petrograd from the extremity of disaster in case of failure. Galicia is equally favorably situated to provide a base and refuge for the southern operations toward Kiev.

THREE BANDITS KILLED

U. S. Soldiers Continue Pursuit of Mexican Outlaws in Texas. Brownsville, Texas, Sept. 4.—Three of the Mexican bandits operating just north of Brownsville were killed by county officers at Los Cuatros, five miles north of Brownsville, according to information received here.

In addition to the Mexicans killed it is said a Mexican woman, deserted by her husband when the outlaws appeared at her home north of Brownsville, was accidentally killed by United States soldiers when she approached them in the darkness in search of protection.

Quick retribution apparently is being meted out to the band which burned a trestle north of Brownsville, and then murdered two Americans, Earl Donaldson, of Fayette, Mo., and J. S. Smith, an engineer, after torturing them.

Leopold Godowsky Missing. New York, Sept. 4.—Police sent out a general alarm for Leopold Godowsky, the pianist, who has been missing from his home at Avon, N. J., since Wednesday. The pianist's wife told the police that her husband was last seen in a barber shop in New York. At that time he had more than $1000 in cash and several hundred dollars worth of jewelry with him. Mrs. Godowsky said that her husband had recently been working on some musical scores and was in a nervous condition.

Odesa Teuton Objective. Copenhagen, Sept. 4.—A dispatch from Berlin states that the Austrian general staff contemplates a great invasion of southern Russia from East Galicia. They will attempt to reach Odesa and Sebastopol, whence they can render aid to the Turks.

Von Kluck Back at the Front. Amsterdam, Sept. 4.—General von Kluck has recovered from his wounds, according to advices from Berlin. He has visited Emperor William at the front and has been appointed commander of the Silesian landwehr.

Fears Internal Trouble May Follow Relax in Submarine Campaign.

London, Sept. 4.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegram company from Amsterdam says:

"Telegrams from Berlin express fears that the German government's decision to relax its submarine campaign will cause most serious internal troubles, as the chancellor's action conflicts with the opinion of all the maritime chiefs.

"It is rumored that Admiral von Tirpitz, the minister of marine, has gone to headquarters of Emperor William to confer with the chief of the emperor's naval staff and that he intends to resign."

RUMANIA IS READY FOR WAR

Expects Austria to Strike at Any Moment.

Rome, Sept. 4.—A dispatch from Bucharest declares that a declaration of war by Austria-Hungary against Rumania is hourly expected.

Preparations for the impending conflict are being rushed in Rumania and the war fever there is constantly increasing. Volunteers are flocking to the colors.

King Ferdinand, alluding to the alleged wholesale arrests and persecutions of Rumanians in Transylvania, is said to have affirmed that he was prepared to make every sacrifice in a war of redemption.

Bulgaria Not Expected to Enter War.

Paris, Sept. 4.—Diplomats here have almost abandoned hope of obtaining Bulgaria's early entrance into the war, despite optimistic dispatches from Rome and Athens.

The text of Serbia's answer to the allies' request that she cede Macedonia to Bulgaria has not been made public. Because of the alliance in official quarters it is understood that Serbia refused to make sufficient concessions to induce Bulgaria to depart from her course of neutrality.

Serbia was willing to cede some territory, and both Greece and Rumania expressed willingness to join in a Balkan conference to consider a revision of the treaty of Bucharest, but Bulgaria insists on definite pledges.

DELAY COAL FREIGHT CUT

Date For Reducing Anthracite Rates Postponed Until Dec. 1.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The interstate commerce commission postponed until Dec. 1 the effective date of its order reducing freight rates on anthracite railroads. The order was to go into effect Oct. 1.

In their petition, asking for an extension, the anthracite roads expressed a general intention to comply with the reduction, but suggested that a complete checking of the proposed tariffs required time.

By its decision in the anthracite case the commission cut $8,000,000 from the yearly revenue of the railroads to the coal regions of Pennsylvania.

Turks Cut Way Through British. Another dispatch says the Turks cut their way through the enveloping lines and escaped.

WILSON TO MAKE NO PEACE MOVE

Will Wait Until Both Sides in War Want It.

POPE'S NOTE SIGNIFICANT

United States Will Make No Further Efforts Until It Knows They Will Be Welcome.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The United States will make no further efforts to bring about peace in Europe until it has received information that its good offices will be welcomed by both sides in the conflict.

This was stated authoritatively in official discussions of the message from Pope Benedict, delivered to President Wilson by Cardinal Gibbons.

From the fact that the Vatican is in close touch with Austria the construction placed by officials on the pope's message is that the Germanic powers would be willing to discuss peace at this time.

It was stated by those in closest touch with the administration that similar word will have to be received from Great Britain and her allies before the president will make any further move.

President Wilson has made it clear that his original offer of services to bring about peace stands, and that he will do everything possible to further the movement. The United States, however, will do nothing likely to endanger its position as a friend to all belligerents, it was said authoritatively.

President Wilson sees no immediate possibility for a move to reconcile the European belligerents. The time may come soon, however, when he can act, and consequently he will hold open the suggestion believed to have been conveyed by the pope that concerted action by the neutrals should be taken and this government renew its original offer of mediation.

The great obstacle to peace at the present moment is considered to be the determination of Germany to retain certain of the territory she now holds and to insist that certain indemnity be paid, and the united sentiment in France and England, that to consent to any peace plea while the honors all remain with Germany is far as land fighting is concerned would mean a renewal of the conflict within a comparatively short time.

Within the last ten days the president has received summaries of the result of the confidential inquiries instituted by Ambassadors Marye at Petrograd, Gerard, at Berlin; Penfield, at Vienna; Sharp, at Paris, and Page, at London.

They are understood to agree in substance that the opportune moment for any suggestion of mediation is not the present one. In fact, both Ambassadors Page and Sharp have declared that England and France would consider a suggestion of mediation at this time as unfriendly. However, no attempt is made to minimize the great influence of the Vatican throughout Europe, and the importance of the papal move at this time.

The president very frankly told Cardinal Gibbons that he was ready to initiate any peace move that gave promise of the slightest success. He made no formal reply, however, to the peace suggestions.

The company also announces having placed employees at its plants on an eight-hour day.

It is stated from the offices of the company that the profit sharing action is taken at this time in order that the employees of the Atlas company may have some knowledge of the policy of their company in the face of the many rumors and statements appearing from day to day as to extra wages and profit distributions.

U. S. LANDS GUNS TO FIGHT HAYTIANS

Marines and Artillery Sent to Drive Out Rebels.

Cape Haytien, Sept. 4.—The United States cruiser Tennessee, from Philadelphia, debarked a large force of marines and sailors, including 100 artillerymen with machine guns.

General Cacos, the revolutionary leader, and his followers declined to lay down their arms, and retired in the direction of Hinche and Gonyales. They left behind them, however, troops which took up positions outside the city, where they are now digging trenches to shut off communication with the interior.

The landing of artillery from the warship indicates that the American forces are prepared to move inland to force the rebels there to lay down their arms. All members of the sanitary corps brought by the Tennessee were landed with the sailors and marines.

It is expected that the march into the interior will begin at once. An aeroplane for scout service is being assembled. It is believed the Americans will meet with determined resistance.

WOMAN FIGHTS FOR CHILD

Husband and Father Takes Girl Away in Automobile.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 4.—For fifteen minutes Mrs. Charles Hall fought with her husband and his father on a prominent street in the residential section before the men succeeded in getting away with the four-year-old daughter of the Halls.

The husband and father got the child into an automobile and hurried away with her, leaving the wife and mother screaming for aid. The Halls have been separated for two years, and the child was given into the custody of the father.

S. A. Hall, father of the husband, has been calling to see the child frequently, and when he invited the child to a candy store the mother also went along.

Kills Himself in Hotel.

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—A man who registered as James Miller, of Reading, committed suicide in his room at Dooner's hotel by swallowing poison. The body was found by George Back, a bellboy. A note left by the suicide says despondency over heavy debts was the cause of the suicide.

Eel's Deadly Blood. If injected into man, the blood of ad eel causes death almost immediately. This should deter no one from eating the fish, however, for the heat of cooking destroys the toxic properties of its blood and, besides, that blood is practically harmless when taken into the stomach.

Banishing Fleas. Last summer my dog was almost eaten up with fleas, until one day I accidentally spilled some salt on him. It killed every flea. I then threw salt all around his house, and bathed him with salt water, and he was not bothered the rest of the summer.—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Real Life.

In Russia, because the peasants have no books to read, they are all forced to read the book of nature. They do not hear the imitation of the nightingale, therefore they listen to the nightingale itself. They do not look at "real life," as depicted in novels, therefore they look at real life without the novels.

Barefoot Boy

Barefoot boy in the far green land, Bearing a shining bow in your hand; Barefoot boy in the old and still End gate pool at the back of the mill; Barefoot boy, with that careless swing, Over of Arcady, summer's king, Tyrannous monarch of valley and hill, You welcome and you sing, Thanking the Lord that there's boyhood still That smiles oblivious to everything.

Barefoot boy—who are making the earth A place of joy and a place of mirth; A new domain for the vision of life, Softening and sweetening the burden of strife.

Bringing the sunshine to hearts that ache, Lifting the souls that are in the life Mad struggle and conflict with sin and truth; Up to a service for all men's sake In the deathless combat life makes for truth.

When there's so much more than the truth at stake.

Barefoot boy, in the sunbright lane, You are creating us over again, You, with your whistle, your freckled face, Your wild abandon to native grace Of movement and action and song and glee.

Child of the blossom and bird and tree, King of the woodland, and friend of the stream, God of the morning of vision to be, Knowing your power and keeping your place.

For the sake of the song and the smile and the dream And the hope of the spirit that set us free!

U. S. FLAG NOW FLYING ON 2,768 OCEAN VESSELS.

New Registry Law Sets Record Not Touched Since 1863.

The American flag now floats over more ships in the foreign trade than at any other time since 1863, and the United States is pressing close on France and Norway as a maritime nation.

Figures by the department of commerce show a record increase in American shipping for the year ended June 30. On that date there were registered in the foreign trade 2,768 ships, totaling 1,812,775 gross tons, an increase of 393 ships and 737,623 tons for the year.

Assistant Secretary Sweet of the department of commerce said:

"This is about triple the increase in registered tonnage for any previous year in American history. Our registered tonnage is now much greater than at any time since 1863, when we had 2,023,114 gross tons in foreign trade. It is many times more efficient, however, as the steam tonnage now amounts to 1,273,007 gross tons, while in 1863 it amounted to only 132,215 tons."

The increase from the ship registry act of Aug. 18, 1914, to June 13, 1915, was so rapid that tonnage under the American flag now employed in foreign trade is nearly equal to such tonnage under the French or Norwegian flag. British tonnage, of course, is more than tenfold greater.

The increase is directly due to the enlarged commerce of this country on account of the war and the retirement of so many merchantmen of other nations.

WOMAN FINED $1,000,000.

Oklahoma Police Judge Gives Her Ninety-nine Year Sentence Besides.

Police Judge Ed L. Williams, Muskogee, Okla., fined Mandy Simon, a Creek Indian woman, $1,000,000 and sentenced her to serve ninety-nine years in jail. She has been in the police court virtually every week for several years.

Judge Williams said he set the fine so high because he did not want her to ever be at large again. The judge's actions were recorded in the record books of the police department, and he was supported by Chief of Police Joe Depew.

"Mandy has been a continual pest to the city of Muskogee for years," said Judge Williams. "She was always causing trouble by getting drunk and doing up. Counting all the times she has been sentenced in this court, I would estimate that she has served out all her time she would have served some fifteen years. I will see to it personally that she spends the remainder of her days in the Muskogee city jail."

On numerous occasions Judge Williams had extended leniency to the woman. Several times he got her positions and released her from jail and once got her a home. Mandy was released by the judge on her last appearance in court, Aug. 16. However, she came back to town Tuesday, got drunk and was arrested.

Judge Williams believes he has assessed the largest fine ever recorded in a municipal court, but also thinks his action was warranted.

LOST BOTH EYES AND ARM.

But Brave French Soldier Won a Wife and the Cross.

Tearful eyes, some of them those of American spectators, looked on at the wedding in a Paris hospital of a Corsican lieutenant, Cantora, who lost both eyes and his left arm during the Marne fighting, and his fiancée, Mlle. Patricia, a fellow countrywoman, who came from Ajaccio for the ceremony.

Immediately after being wounded Cantora wrote to his fiancée returning her the engagement ring and offering to release her from her promise. She refused the offer, saying she felt all the more bound to keep faith with him.

At the wedding Cantora wore the cross of the Legion of Honor and the much prized military medal, both awarded him for his bravery.

ANKLE WATCHES TO BE NEW FAD

Girls Will Also Wear Skirts Nine Inches From Ground.

BUT HATS WILL BE HIGHER

And to Be Perfectly Stylish, One Must Wear a Hand Painted Pigeon on the Wrist—It's to Be a Wonderful Winter When It Comes to Clothes, So Get Prepared.

Shorter skirts will be worn this fall and winter, girls. Nine inches from the ground they'll be and falling wide at the bottom. High shoes laced in many ways will be in vogue, with ankle watches strapped around the shoe tops. Waists will be extremely tight and will button in front, and well, there's so much of this let's proceed in orderly fashion.

Coats? Yes; they will be worn. They will date back to 1893, being very full, with big pockets, fur cuffs and circular collars. The collars will come up to the tip of the wearer's nose. These fashions were brought in by a score of buyers who arrived recently from France.

Decollete will be the same as usual, only more so, and mostly V shaped. Some of those gowns certainly do look very, very low! And here's another thing: Correct evening dress demands the butterfly cape. You know the kind—buttoned or loops or something like that over the shoulders, so that when you spin around quickly you appear to be sprouting wings.

See Those Hats Shoot Up!

Hats are coming back into style again. You remember, they rather went out of fashion this year, and all the women were wearing no crowns, just sort of half hats. But they will have crowns, brims and everything else this fall and winter, only the crowns will be much higher and the brims far smaller.

Violet will be the predominating color. Make a note of that, so no wily dressmaker will deceive you by trying to sell you a white evening gown. To be harmonious to the new power on this violet color scheme it is rumored that violet colored cocktails may even become a habit.

Goodness! We almost forgot about the hand painted pigeons! One million hand painted doves beautiful birds, which have been obtained from the Church of St. Francis in Lausanne, Switzerland. He says he is only going to keep the birds in his conservatory, but the report exists that the days of falcon carrying are to be revived and that the well groomed and fashionable woman must carry about a hand painted pigeon strapped to her wrist.

Macaws Will Get Jealous.

And these are some pigeons! Red, yellow, green and blue are a few of the colors. Yellow and red are others; some are brown and green, and still others are blue and blue. Furthermore, the color will not wash off the tail, but will stay on it.

Short, nine inch from the ground, skirts, high shoes, with ankle watches, light waists, high crowned and small primmed hats, and a hand colored pigeon on the wrist! It will be a wonderful fall and winter, boys and girls most wonderful!

TREE VALUED AT $30,000.

Milgrate Pear Variety Insured For Record Amount in London.

An alligator pear tree has been insured by Lloyds for $30,000. This makes an American tree, situated in Los Angeles county, Cal., the most valuable tree in the world, even outstripping the centuries old date palms of Arabia. Through the enterprise of Lloyds of London this tree is insured against damage by wind or rain.

This avocado tree grows on a fruit ranch in Whittier, Cal. Last year it produced 3,000 pears, which brought the owner an average of 50 cents each. Besides the pears, which are used extensively for salads, the owner received $1,500 for the bud wood. The total amount brought by the tree last year was $3,000, which is equivalent to the interest at 5 per cent on a $60,000 investment.

Not only is the tree valuable in its production of fruit and bud wood, but valuable by-products can be taken from the fruit, allowing no waste in the event of overripeness or spoiling. The seed is used for the making of black dye, and any fruit unfit for market purposes can be squeezed and the oil expressed. It is used for the finer grades of soap and in rare perfumed oils for lighting.

COLLEGE COURSE FOR POLICE

Berkeley Force Required to Make Study of Criminology.

Police men of Berkeley, Cal., have been requested to attend the University of California. This, it is believed, is the first time any city in the world has made preparations to have a college bred police department.

The course of study is in the relation of mental disease to criminology. The theory is that the policeman will be enabled to "size up" a man arrested for a crime and ascertain just what other offenses against the law he may have committed.

BRITISH TRANSPORT SUNK; 1770 DROWNED

Troop-Laden Vessel Strikes a Mine at Dardanelles.

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, L. I., Sept. 4.—"Telegrams from Sofia" says the Overseas News agency, "say that off the entrance to the Dardanelles a British transport struck a mine and sank with 229 officers, 1250 soldiers and 300 members of the crew, all of whom were drowned. Six hundred bodies were recovered."

The British government officially announced on Aug. 17 that the British transport Royal Edward had been sunk, Saturday, Aug. 11, in the Aegean sea by a German submarine. The number of troops on board was given as 1350, with 229 officers and men of the crew, and it was stated that about 600 were saved.

In the absence of a date for the sinking of the transport reported through Sofia, it is uncertain whether this refers to the Royal Edward or to the loss of another transport by the British.

The Modest Scot.

Love of country is so fine a virtue that it seems difficult to carry it to excess. A resident of a small village in the north of Scotland paid a business visit to London and called on a merchant who, unknown to him, had once made a stay in his native place. In the course of conversation the visitor made use of an expression that led the other to exclaim, "Surely you come from Glen McLuskie?" The assertion, however, was denied. Presently, to the merchant's surprise, another Glen McLuskie expression was heard. "My dear Mr. MacTayish, I feel convinced that you are a Glen McLuskie man after all," insisted the merchant.

"Weel," returned the other, "I'll no deny it any longer."

"Then why didn't you say so at first?" demanded the Englishman.

"Weel," was the calm response, "I didna like to boast of it in London."

Sham Wisdom.

The Sophists were a body of teachers in ancient Athens during the fourth and fifth centuries B. C., who gave instruction in any or all of the higher branches of learning. Although they were not a philosophic sect and held no doctrines in common, the Sophists were nevertheless skeptics and maintained a belief of uncertainty of all particular knowledge and, in fact, in the impossibility of all truth. Their two leading representatives were Protagoras and Gorgias. The Sophists were charged with bringing reasoning into contempt by casting uncertainty over the most obvious truths and in consequence were ridiculed and denounced by Aristophanes, Socrates and Plato. Aristotle defined a Sophist as "a man who makes money by sham wisdom."

The THOUSANDTH WOMAN

Author of The AMATEUR CRACKSMAN,
RAFFLES, Etc.
ILLUSTRATIONS by O. IRWIN MYERS

He had told the whole thing as he always could tell an actual experience; that was one reason why it rang so true to one listener at every point. But the sick man's sunken eyes had advanced from their sockets in cumulative amazement. And Hilton Toye laughed shortly when the end was reached.

"You figure some on our credulity!" was his first comment.

"I don't figure on anything from you, Toye, except a pair of handcuffs as a first installment!"

Toye rose in prompt acceptance of the challenge. "Seriously, Cazalet, you ask us to believe that you did all this to screen a man you didn't have time to recognize?"

"I've told you the facts."

"Well, I guess you'd better tell them to the police." Toye took his hat and stick. Scruton was struggling from his chair. "Blanche stood petrified, a dove under a serpent's spell, as Toye made her a dramatic bow from the landing door. 'You broke your side of the contract, Miss Blanche! I guess it's up to me to be complete.'"

"Wait!"

It was Scruton's raven creak; he had tottered to his feet.

"Sure," said Toye, "if you've anything you want to say as an interested party."

"Only this—he's told the truth!"

"Well, can he prove it?"

"I don't know," said Scruton. "But I can!"

"You?" Blanche chimed in there.

"Yes, I'd like that first, if you don't mind, Cazalet." It was Blanche who got it for him, in an instant.

"Thank you! I'd say more if my blessing was worth having—but here's something that is. Listen to this, you American gentleman: I was the man who wrote to him in Naples. Leave the motor, but it wasn't Henry Craven that I wanted to see, but the man who was coming to see him. Eventually I thought I must have made a mistake, or he might have changed his mind and come by myself. The dressing-gone had gone; at least I supposed it was that by the time. It was almost quite dark, and I landed and went up the path past the back premises to the front of the house. So far I hadn't seen a soul, or been seen by one, evidently; but the French windows were open in what used to be my father's library, the room was all lit up, and just as I got there a man ran out into the flood of light and—"

"I thought you said he brushed by you in the dark?" interrupted Toye.

"I was in the dark," Toye had said in other words; and no power of earth would induce me to swear to him. Do you want to hear the rest, Scruton, or are you another unbeliever?"

"I want to hear every word—more than ever!"

Toye cocked his head at both questions and answer, but inclined it quickly as Cazalet turned to him before proceeding.

"I went in and found Henry Craven lying in his blood. That's gospel—it was so I found him—lying just where he had fallen in a heap out of the leather chair at his desk. The top right-hand drawer of his desk was open, the key in it and the rest of the bunch still swinging! A revolver lay as it had dropped upon the desk—it had upended the ink—and there were cartridges lying loose in the open it at that minute; it was my second letter to him; the first was to Australia, in answer to one from him. It was the full history of my downfall. I got a warrant to smuggle it out. That letter was my one chance."

"I know it by heart," said Cazalet. "It was that and nothing else that made me leave before the hearing."

"To meet me when I came out!" Scruton exclaimed in a hoarse whisper.

"To keep me from going straight to that man, as I'd told him I should in my first letter! But you can't hit these things off to the day or the week; he'd told me where to write to him on his voyage, and I wrote to Naples, but that letter did not get smuggled out. My warder friend had got the sack. I had to put what I'd got to say so that you could read it two ways. So I told you, Cazalet, I was going straight up the river for a row—and you can pronounce that two ways. And I said I hoped I shouldn't break a skull—but there's another way of spelling that, and it was the other way I meant!" He chuckled grimly.

"I wanted you to lie low and let me lie low if that happened. I wanted just one man in the world to know I'd done it. But that's how we came to miss each other, for you timed it to a tick, if you hadn't misread me about the river."

He drank again, stood straighter and found a fuller voice.

"Yet I never meant to do it unless he made me, and at the back of my brain I never thought he would. I thought he'd do something for me, after all he'd done before! Shall I tell you what he did?"

"Got out his revolver," cried Cazalet in a voice that was his own justification as well.

"Pretending it was going to be his check-book!" said Scruton, through his teeth. "But I heard him trying to cock it inside his drawer. There was his special constable's truncheon upon the wall, silver mounted, for all the world to know how he'd stood up for law and order in the sight of men! I tell you it was a joy to feel the weight of that truncheon, and to see the hero of Trafalgar Square fumbling with a thing he didn't understand! I hit him as hard as God would let me—and the rest you know—except that I nearly did trip over the man who swore it was broad daylight at the time!"

He tottered to the folding doors, and stood there a moment, pointing to Cazalet with a hand that twitched as terribly as his dreadful face.

"No—the rest you did—the rest you did to save what wasn't worth saving! But—I think—I'll hold out long enough to thank you—just a little!" He was gone with a gibbering smile.

Cazalet turned straight to Toye at the other door. "Well? Aren't you going too? You were near enough, you see! I'm an accessory all right—he dropped his voice—but I'd be principal if I could instead of him!"

But Toye had come back into the room, twinkling with triumph, even rubbing his hands. "You didn't see? You didn't see? I never meant to go at all; it was a bit of bluff to make him own up, and it did, too, bully!"

"The couple gasped."

"You mean to tell me," cried Cazalet, "that you believed my story all the time?"

"Why, I didn't have a moment's doubt about it!"

Cazalet drew away from the chuckling creature and his crafty glee. But Blanche came forward and held out her hand.

"Will you forgive me, Mr. Toye?"

"Sure, if I had anything to forgive. It's the other way around, I guess, and about time I did something to help."

He edged up to the folding door. "This is a two-man job, Cazalet, the way I make it out. Guess it's my watch on deck!"

"The other's the way to the police station," said Cazalet densely.

Toye turned solemn on the word. "It's the way to hell, if Miss Blanche will forgive me! This is more like the other place, thanks to you folks. Guess I'll leave the angels in charge!"

Angelic or not, the pair were alone at last; and through the doors they heard a quavering croak of welcome to the rather human god from the American machine.

"I'm afraid he'll never go back with you to the bush," whispered Blanche.

"Scruton?"

"Yes."

"I'm afraid, too. But I wanted to take somebody else out, too. I was trying to say so over a week ago, when we were talking about old Venus Potts. Blanche, will you come?"

(THE END.)

Velvet for Cleaning.

A small piece of velvet is a fine cleaner for brass, and for polishing silverware it is better than chamois. It quickly removes the dust from wood-work, and if used to rub the stove after it has been blacked will produce a high polish. There is nothing better to dust a felt hat. Silk dresses and other silk articles should always be dusted with it, for it cleans perfectly without cutting or otherwise injuring the silk.

Greeted His Old Friends.

A young actor obtained permission from the celebrated satirist Piron to read to him a tragedy which was on the eve of being brought out. At every verse that was pilaged Piron took out his hat and bowed, and so frequently had no occasion to do this that the author surprised, asked what he meant.

"Oh," replied Piron, "it is only a habit I have got of saluting my old acquaintances."

Mixed.

There is a man living in Lanchester, Pa., who amuses himself by grafting all sorts of plants upon other plants. He has invented the "table d'hôte" tree, formerly a peach tree that did its full duty in bearing peaches but that now bears apples, plums and cherries as well, besides supporting grafts of cedar, rose, hemlock, blackberry and lilac. With what curiosity the peach tree's relatives must look upon it!

TO SEEK BODIES ON LUSITANIA

New Device May Enable Recovery of Lost Gold Also.

INVENTED BY SIMON LAKE.

Apparatus Has Already Passed Experimental Stage and Has Proved Successful—$5,000,000 in Gold on Ship Sunk in 1917 Will Be Caught Also. Called Semisubmersible Tube.

Simon Lake, inventor of the type of submarine that bears his name, has evolved an apparatus that can recover the valuable cargo of the sunken Lusitania and other vessels destroyed by German submarines. Mr. Lake, at Bridgeport, Conn., said:

"The apparatus already has proved successful and has really passed the experimental stage. I feel confident it will be able to recover cargoes from vessels lying at a depth of 300 feet or less and that it will be able to raise sunken vessels completely when they are lying in water no deeper than 200 feet."

"Already we have constructed a full sized one at Bridgeport, on the east coast of England, and this one will be used to recover the $5,000,000 of bullion that was lost in the British ship Lutina off the coast of Holland in 1917."

Confident of Success.

"There have been many attempts to secure this valuable cargo, but all have ended in disaster. Our attempt will be made in conjunction with Lloyd's of London. If it is successful, as I believe it will be, there is no reason why it cannot be used to raise the ships sunk in the war zone, or at least to recover their cargoes."

The apparatus is known as the "semisubmersible tube." Mr. Lake describes it as a long tube, five feet in diameter, with a large chamber at one end. The latter is known as the working chamber, and it contains motors, searchlights and other apparatus necessary to control air pressures.

Just above the working chamber is a compartment known as the air lock. It is in this that the operator accustoms himself to the pressure at the particular depth in which he has to work before emerging into the chamber.

In this working chamber is a lens arrangement known as the "telescope," which enables the operator to look out over the bottom of the ocean and locate the wreck he is searching. The semisubmersible tube is fitted to a special type of wrecking steamer.

Locating the Wreck.

Mr. Lake explains further: "The operator descends into the chamber by means of a stairway built into the tube and, after passing through the air lock, goes into the working chamber. He then looks through the telescope while the steamer slowly navigates around."

"As soon as the wreck is located the operator telephones to the captain of the wrecking steamer, and the latter brings his vessel to a stop over the wreck, following the maneuvering directions telephoned to him by the operator. The tube is then lowered on to the deck of the wrecked vessel."

"The working chamber has a door on its under side. The air inside is equal in pressure to that of the water outside, and, as the doors open downward, it is impossible for water to get into the tube."

"When the doors are open the operator, equipped with a diver's outfit, can step on to the deck of the wreck and immediately begin work on recovering the cargo or other things of value. The recovered articles are placed in slings or on hooks and then hoisted to the surface by the derricks on the wrecking steamer."

Carries Electric Lights.

"The operator carries with him a special type of portable electric light which enables him to see his way clearly about the sunken vessel. Crossed lines or cut lines are a constant danger to ordinary divers, but they have no qualms for our operator, because in case of trouble all he has to do is to walk back to the operating chamber."

"According to reports at the time of her sinking the Lusitania is resting in forty fathoms of water—240 feet. If this depth is correct it would be an easy matter to recover the bodies imprisoned beneath her decks as well as her cargo."

For raising sunken steamships, Mr. Lake says, the same apparatus is used, with the exception that it can be operated only in depths up to 200 feet.

The special wrecking steamer devised by Mr. Lake for use with his tube is so arranged that the tube can be used in a heavy sea.

IRON COINS FOR GERMANY.

Nickel Not to Be Used in New Five Pfennig Pieces.

The bundesrath has passed a law providing for the coinage of iron five pfennig pieces (1/2 cents), says a Berlin dispatch.

The demand for five pfennig pieces is great, especially because quantities are in circulation in the hostile territory occupied by Germany, and more are needed. Under present circumstances, however, the use of nickel for coinage is held to be inadvisable.

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

MUST BEGIN AT THE BOTTOM

First Thing to Do Is to Improve Bad Dirt Roads—Money Required Is Astonishingly Small.

The dirt roads are the real highways of commerce. Without them you would have little use for macadam roads or other highways of like character. In the road fabric we must begin at the bottom. As the dirt roads are improved year by year, by process of evolution, when necessity requires a certain percentage of them will become trunk lines and be converted into rock, macadam, concrete or roads of like character. This will come about when the betterment of the dirt roads has so improved agricultural and other communities through which they pass that the wealth and population and commerce justify it.

We cannot make all the roads rock, macadam or concrete roads, but we can make all our bad dirt roads good dirt roads. We can make the rock, macadam or concrete roads in certain sections and communities where country growth, wealth, population and volume of heavy traffic demand and justify it. The amount of money really required to convert a bad dirt road into a good dirt road by the use of modern road equipment is astonishingly small.

Where the roads from the farm to the railway station are partly bad dirt roads, partly good dirt roads and partly rock, concrete or macadam roads, the farmer must gauge his load not by the good dirt road, but by the good macadam road over which he passes a part of the distance, but by the bad dirt road he must travel. What we should do is to improve the road, gauging the load the producer must haul. If he has to struggle with bad dirt roads, he is the man we wish to serve. These roads are the arteries of the commerce of the soil, and our very life, credit, prosperity, education, church and future interests depend upon them.

The closer we place the producer to the markets the lower will be our cost of living. The roads which serve the producers today are the dirt roads, roads of the people, roads reaching every community, and 50 years from now the great majority of the roads serving the producers will still be dirt roads. We must deal with things real, not ideal!—Gov. Major of Missouri.

VALUE OF BETTER HIGHWAYS

Man Looking for Location Is Likely to Judge Neighborhood by Kind of Roads It Maintains.

Are you doing anything for good roads? Is your community doing anything? Is your county alive to the value of rock roads, roads of a permanent type? If you are a farmer you ought to be able to realize the value of better highways more keenly than any other citizen.

It is a fact that the chance visitor and the man who is looking for a location are likely to judge a neighborhood or a region by the kind of highways it maintains. Stretches of mud holes blast a community's reputation. Bad roads kill church life and choke education. Churches and schools are dependent very markedly upon good roads. Where the roads are stretches of mud in winter and dust and old ruts in summer, neither schools nor churches may flourish.

When you find a farmer who opposes good roads and fights a reasonable taxation for building better highways you will find a man who is a drawback to his community.

The Split-Log Drag.

The split-log drag has contributed more toward the economic maintenance of public highways than any implement of modern usage. It does not require special acts of the legislature, bond issues, nor expensive educational campaigns to make it available, as usually precedes construction work.

Time for Road Drag.

As soon as the mud begins to dry up, the road drags should be put to work.

Old Way of Cleaning Clothes.

MRS. MOHR TELLS OF UNHAPPY LIFE

Says Husband Flaunted Rivals
In Her Face.

SHE PLANS THE FUNERAL

Admits Being Stung by Jealousy, But
Declares She Is Innocent of Murder
Plot.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 4.—She was jealous of her husband, who "taunted her" and "made her see his attentions to other women," Mrs. Elizabeth Tiffany Mohr told the police.

She is at liberty under $10,000 bonds for her appearance, after the accusation by three colored men, that she incited the murder of her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, who was shot to death in his automobile while riding with a woman secretary.

Amid preparations for the funeral of her husband, from whom she had been separated, Mrs. Mohr lost her composure for the first time since suspicion fell upon her. She had attempted a formal interview, but it was soon interrupted with sobs and ended in an outburst of weeping.

She reiterated her declarations of innocence and insisted that the story of the three colored men that she had hired them to dispose of her husband, was concocted after the plot to rob Dr. Mohr had resulted in his murder.

"I am absolutely innocent of this whole terrible affair," she began, very calmly enough. "I do not care so much for myself as for my dear children." With the mention of the children the tears came, and it was some moments before she could continue. Then she said:

"But I am innocent and I have nothing to fear. The story told by those colored men is ridiculous. There is no question but that the story they first told of their plan to rob the doctor, was the real motive for the shooting."

Mrs. Mohr told the police it was "in one of my jealous moods" that she wrote the letter threatening Miss Emily G. Barker, the secretary who was shot with the physician.

According to the police, Mrs. Mohr talked with the doctor's chauffeur, George W. Healls, and C. Victor Brown, who was formerly employed as a hostler by the physician, but said she had sought from them "to find out what the doctor was doing." Brown and Healls, with Henry Spellman, are alleged accomplices of Mrs. Mohr, who was involved by their confessions.

"My life in recent years," she told Chief Inspector O'Neill, "has been anything but happy. The doctor used to taunt me terribly by letting me know in one way or another that he went around with other women. He made it a point to let me see him out riding with other girls. He would go some young woman and take her out horseback riding and ride past the house so that I could see him. He flaunted these other women right in my face."

Funeral services for Dr. Mohr were private, attendance being limited to relatives and a few neighbors. With Mrs. Mohr were her two children, a nephew and the doctor's brother, John D. Mohr, of McKeesville, Pa.

Friends of Dr. Mohr said his estate is worth $500,000. They estimated Dr. Mohr's income during the past fifteen or twenty years from $50,000 to $75,000 a year.

A SALON DIALOGUE

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

"What a pity it is," said Betty Chamberlin to me, "that Harry Ashurst is going to throw himself away on that Perkins girl!"

"What's the matter with Ida Perkins?" I asked.

"Oh, nothing," replied Betty, "only she's not half good enough for Harry."

"Why don't you interrupt the proceedings?"

"How could I do that?"

"Step in between them."

"You flatterer! One would think to hear you talk that I could have any man I want for the asking."

"So you could and not half try."

Betty tried hard to conceal the pleasure my appreciation of her powers gave her, but failed.

"There's one man I couldn't!"

"Who?"

"The first letter of his first name is J."

"That's because you never tried."

My first name is James.

"Perhaps I will."

"What would poor Harry do in the meanwhile? He would be swallowed up by Ida Perkins."

"Oh, that affair could wait."

"When are you going to begin on me?"

"You? Oh, you can wait too. Good morning. Come and see me soon. I have things to tell you."

"Very soon. Goodbye!"

This scrap of conversation, which I am free to admit was not concentrated wisdom, occurred at the glove counter of Jones', where I met Miss Chamberlin. The next time I saw her was at Mrs. Winters' salon, so called from the brilliant dialogues that take place there. Betty was tied to Ashurst. He was a graduate of a scientific school and could drown her in a pool of ideas seven feet deep. I was sandwiched between two girls directly behind them. We conversed with one another, but had our ears open for what Ashurst and Betty were saying. One of the girls beside me was Ida Perkins. The only remark that could be considered to refer to the couple in front of us was made by Ida. It was this:

"Why do you bright men get stuck in the honey of stupid girls?"

"Leave out the 'you,' and I will answer the question," I replied.

But she wouldn't, and I confess I would not have been pleased if she had.

Betty made a judgment with Ashurst at that salon, and this is the way she did it.

"I have heard, Mr. Ashurst," she was saying, "that you are not one of the kind to let certain of anything and that you never force your opinions on any one."

"Confound those persons who know everything!" grunted Ashurst.

"So say I—that is, I mean persons who don't know as much as other persons who know a great deal, but are not constantly trying to show it off."

This was a trifle mixed, but Ashurst didn't seem to mind it.

"Some of the women here make me laugh," Betty went on. "They think they're quite wise. Don't they tire you, Mr. Ashurst?"

"I don't know; some of them do."

"I heard one of them just now talking about the big European war. She said the allies had the best generals, only they had been short of ammunition."

"Which allies?"

"Why, I suppose she meant—is there more than one ally?"

I saw Ida Perkins and Belle Townsend—Belle was the other side of the sandwich that had me for a middle—look at each other. Fortunately for Betty a lady passed her, bidding her good evening and making a remark about the weather. So Betty was not obliged to go any further into the military problems of the great war. Indeed, it had not been her intention to do so. She had become inadvertently drawn into it by attempting to hold up one of her rivals in an unfavorable light.

"Are you fond of motoring, Mr. Ashurst?" was her next remark. "I don't suppose you are. At least so busy a man as you is not likely to have time to enjoy himself."

Ashurst was the scientific adviser of a gigantic manufacturing corporation. He looked relieved that Betty should have spared him the trouble of answering the question she had asked him. Bet has beautiful eyes and knows that they serve her a better purpose than her tongue, for unfortunately the latter member cannot wag without drawing on her brain.

"The reason why I asked you if you were fond of motoring is that I have a car, and if you could spare me some afternoon about 4 o'clock—"

"I should be very happy," was the reply.

"Don't you think an ice would cool us? These rooms are very warm."

They arose and went elsewhere. Bet had caught sight of Ida in rather too close proximity to suit her.

The next time I saw Betty I congratulated her on her engagement to Ashurst. "Didn't I tell you," I said, "that you could if you tried?"

"What's this I hear about you and Ida Perkins?" she asked, looking at me anxiously.

"Oh, we're engaged too."

"I have never since regained the place I occupied in Betty's good graces. I don't see why. Surely she could not have Ashurst and me too. Perhaps if I had married any but the first of the bed of another man she might have mated my friend."
